Hello Rich,

This is the first of the Pavillion, WY messages that I mentioned in my voice mail to you. It looks like another mass mailing like the one we had last year. Since this message was received at 12:39 we now have about 160 email messages on this topic. I'll set up another Pavillion folder in our email so we can capture the number of messages.

Subject: Take back control of the Pavillion, WY water study!

Dear Mr. President,

I am writing to you today to urge you to change course on the Pavillion, WY pollution study. Allow EPA to continue the good work they were doing investigating the contamination of groundwater by oil and gas development. It is imperative that the EPA continue as the lead on this study in order to truly protect communities and water resources from fracking.

It is outrageous that this important study has been handed over to an industry-friendly state government, leaving Pavillion-area citizens unprotected. Many families still do not have clean drinking water because of contamination from the drilling industry.

Pavillion, Wyoming deserve better. It is time to stop kowtowing to energy industry interests and order the EPA to take charge, once again, of the pollution study.

Sincerely,

Marissa Hicks
